The Pulpit

A SERMON BY THE REV. IRA W. HENDERSON

Subject: The Man Jesus.

Brooklyn, N. Y.—Preaching at the Irving Square Presbyterian Church on the theme, "The Man Jesus," the pastor, the Rev. Ira Wemmell Henderson, took as his text John 12:21, "Sir, we would see Jesus." He said:

Let us go with these certain Greeks of whom John bears on record and see Jesus. Down the long perspective of the ages let us look at Christ, the man.

A study of the career of the Savior will indicate two central and crucial elements in His character as a man. Jesus was a man of parts; He was also a man of power. The Lord was not a negative being. He had definite ability and the energy to put His gifts into direct achievements.

The Christ was a man of parts. As a philosopher He is peerless; as a teacher He can teach us all the way to teach; a preacher to mankind His utterances are unique. His ministry at present and a constant joy to the weary and a sweet remembrance to heart and soul alike.

Jesus was a man of power. His spirituality is unsurpassed. His goodness is the godly kind that we admire. His sincerity makes the heart sure; His commanding positiveness is refreshing. His constancy was sublime.

Jesus was a man of parts. In His clear and authoritative statements of eternal truths He attracts rather than a philosopher without an equal. To Him God was the first great statesman, the personal, spiritual giver and ruler of all life. For Him union with the will of God in a holy, godly life is the highest good for time and for society. In the mind of Christ sin is disobedience to the will of the Almighty and its wages is deliberate separation from Him—that is to say, death. The things that are spiritual are the only things that last unto eternity, and it was to the attainment of eternal graces as the end of human existence that Christ turned the attention of mankind. A glance into the depths and ranges and reaches of human thought and experience that His many lessons touch will convince any man, however skeptical he may be, of His predominant position among this world's philosophers.

Jesus is markedly a teacher as He unfolds and explains the mysteries of divine verities. With the simplest language and the most charming parables Jesus sent home the changeless truths. Does He desire to show the vehemence of trust in riches He pictures to us the rich man with his big barns and his bank and the wreck thereof. Under His touch the leaven in the loaf reveals to us the men and the women we should be. He lights a candle for us, and we strive to spread His truth throughout the globe. The supper of the mighty lord sends us out into the highways and the byways to bid men lay fast hold upon salvation, free, rich, sufficient. As a teacher Christ is masterful. He takes a mustard seed and we see the coming of the kingdom. A man hides a talent in a napkin and stands forever as a danger signal beside the king's highway. The foolish virgins are a lesson to us to be ready for the coming of the Master. These and the rest of the parables of Jesus are full of suggestion and of implication, weighty with concentrated principles.

Jesus taught spiritual and moral principles. He was not foolish enough to endeavor to give to us a set of rules which should be for us a sort of guide book or directory. He was no set of statutes. Realizing that we are men and not automatons our Lord suggests the principles and then leaves the individual to work out for himself under the guidance of the Spirit of God the application of the principle of his own life. Christ didn't worry about the geographical situation of Judea or over the question as to whether the world is flat or round. Those points at issue were quite beyond His province. His mission was to teach spiritual and moral truth, and He had neither time nor taste for anything else. Why should He worry over secondary and transient matters when the souls of men were in dire need of that primal truth which is the foundation of worthy life?

Jesus also taught with authority. He knew that the truth was in Him and He let no man contradict Him with success.

He spoke, and to those men—believing and unbelieving—it came as the voice of God. There is no parallel to what it comprises. Many limit it to benevolent gifts and kindly ministries, or to public religious services, but this is more. It includes a personal faith in Christ, holy communion with God and a pure life. There can be no real and abiding practice of spirituality without a renovated nature and a sanctified heart.—Selected.

True Peace.

A Mirror Chewer.

After having swallowed swords, knives, needles, pokers, pairs of tongs, ken bottles and pieces of looking glass, year after year, to the astonishment of audiences here and abroad, Albertus Pierce, the "Human Ostrich," went to Bellevue yesterday in his cowboy rig to be treated for—a pain in his leg.

"My stomach's all right," he said to Dr. Smith, "but my leg bothers me." The surgeon found the bone in his leg was decaying, probably, due to the poison in the mercury on the backs of the mirrors he had swallowed from time to time, which had settled in his joints. — New York World.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL.

INTERNATIONAL LESSON COMMENTS FOR APRIL 28. BY THE REV. I. W. HENDERSON.

Subject: Joseph Faithful in Prison, Gen. 39:20-40:15—Golden Text: Rev. 2:10 — Memory Verses, 21, 22.

The Midianites take Joseph with them into Egypt. He is sold to a new master, Potiphar, the captain of the guard of Pharaoh. God wonderfully blesses all he work to which he lays his hands. He gains the confidence and the esteem of Potiphar. He is made the head servant in the captain's household. Fidelity to his trust in the face of opportunities for evil against which few men in a like capacity would have been proof lands him in prison. There is no justice in his condemnation. But into the dungeon they send him upon the unsupported testimony of an unworthy woman.

In the prison the greatness of God's providence and of Joseph's character receive further demonstration. Joseph is supremely blessed. God prospers whatever he undertakes to accomplish. And Joseph he wastes no time in idle condemnation of the harshness of his lot. He wastes no time cursing God for allowing him to become enmeshed in such a terrible net. The dream in which he had told his brothers of the great delight sustains him and comforts him in a hope. He is confident of the blessing and the providence of God in his future. He is a consecrated trial. God had delivered him out of the hands of unspeaking murderers and had spared him from a life of hard toil to a position of power in the household of the great Egyptian dignitary. The God who had delivered him before is to be the helper. Joseph will succeed still lived. Why should he mourn or murmur?

Joseph played the man. He was faithful to God. He retained a lively consciousness of God's fidelity to him. He never relinquished his belief in the divine leading and the divine providence. And his rectitude was recognized. He became as powerful in the prison as he had been in the palace. The jailership was taken for granted. In all likelihood his innocence was assumed though he was not released.

Faithfulness to God made all this possible. God blessed him because he was worthy of the blessing. Joseph was able to resist the wiles of Potiphar's wife because he had a reverential awe of the deity he served and to Potiphar. He was able to be cheerful and to be patient and useful in prison because he had faith in God and was faithful to Him.

It takes a man to be faithful to God in the face of the difficulties that confronted Joseph. But it takes a man who is faithful in the midst of the shadows of life who is to watching for the blessings that come when sunshine breaks through. Joseph had ample excuse, if he had been anxious for one, to blame God for his woes and blame for the unwise love that his father showered upon him. He had done nothing particularly criminal, though he had been guilty of foolish, to warrant the slavery into which he was sold. He might have revelled the character of his brothers and would jail a man for desiring to be pure in life. But he trusted God with his hair and beaten his head against the bars of his cell. He had accepted his predicament. But he did not accept it as the end. He was a genius and a hard laborer. He had great intellectual ability and he used it to the fullness. The world is full of geniuses without power. The list of unknown saviors is large. Jesus had talent and the real, vital spiritual power that could make talent productive. He had the right kind of energy and strength of it. He got His dynamic from God. That is where we should aspire for ours.

Little Sins.

The little faults, the little sins, so-called, which may seem so inconsequential, may, nevertheless, be made from us the vision of the Eternal. They need not break the mirror of the telescope, or coat them over with pitch, in order to prevent us from seeing through them. Just breathe upon them and then draw off your breath with shut out all the stars. So the little sins require great crimes to hide the light of God's countenance. Little faults can do it just as well.

Take a shield and let selfishness spear upon it, and it will leave on it one great dent. Put it in the centre of a million little needle shafts and they will not hide the walls of rock from the piercing of the spear. So it is not so much the sins and wrongs that prosper, and it will go from glory to glory in the sphere of its activity.

Further, we are invited to the exercise of our capacity for the exercise of our relations with God. Faithfulness not only for the moments and days, but faithfulness for the span of life that God in His providence permits to us upon the earth. Faithfulness not to be continually, not intermittently, faithful. He desires consistency.

The Golden Text also offers us a promise that is the most precious promise that a loving God can make to man. "I will give thee a crown of life." That is the reward for continuous faithfulness in our relationships in life. It should be the ambition of every soul to attain it. The God who blessed Joseph is the same God who makes this gracious promise to us. The God who rewarded the faithfulness of Joseph in this life is the God who gives promise that the result of our faithfulness here shall cause us to be blessed. Shall we not trust Him? Shall we not be faithful to Him and to His children, our brethren? Faithfulness in all its might and beauty. Jesus' daily bread.

Brains of Scientists.

Famous brains are of four sorts. The lowest group contains the minds that have been stimulated greatly by alcohol, tea and other drugs, and by impressions derived from the senses; "My stomach's all right," he said "My stomach's all right," he said to Dr. Smith, "but my leg bothers me." The surgeon found the bone in his leg was decaying, due probably, to the poison in the mercury on the backs of the mirrors he had swallowed from time to time, which had settled in his joints. — New York World.

It is not necessary for us to go to California to get testimonials. We have them from people you know, and want you to read every one given below.

TESTIMONIALS.

My wife suffered for twenty years with failing of an ulcerated womb, and was bed-ridden for five years; was treated by different physicians with only temporary benefit. Twelve months' use of P.-B. Concentrated Iron and Alum Water made a perfect cure. She gained thirty pounds in flesh. I regard it as the most valuable remedy known for female and other troubles.

Gus. J. Burford,
Natola, Va.

About 22 years ago I contracted blood poison, and it clung to me through all those years, until I used P.-B. Concentrated Iron and Alum Water. I am now in perfect health, and have gained 25 pounds in weight. I also cured my boy from Bleeding Piles, and obtained no permanent relief until I used this remedy. It must be permanently cured now, as I have had no need to use the water for the past two years.

Robert Nunnally,
Amherst, Va.

I have lived in the neighborhood of the P.-B. Iron and Alum Springs for a number of years, and can testify to the merits of the water as a tonic, and a sure cure for Scrofula and other Blood Troubles I have also heard it highly recommended for female troubles, and my father used it for throat trouble, with great benefit.

Mrs. Sallie J. Nance,
East Radford, Va.

I am glad to inform you that the Concentrated Water put up by your Company has been of great value to my daughter. She was in a very weak and nervous condition before using the water, and two bottles made her almost a new woman. I am satisfied that it is a valuable remedy and should be met with a large sale.

Joel H. Catchin, Mayor,
Roanoke, Va.

I suffered from Indigestion to such an extent that it was for weeks that I could not eat anything but the lightest of diet; could not even eat bread. Dr. Coles prescribed your Concentrated Iron and Alum Water, which I have used for several months, and the results are that I can eat almost anything, and my Indigestion is cured.

Mrs. J. F. Hinton,
621 Oxford St., Danville, Va.

My son, who was suffering with a dose.

Indigestion to such an extent that he had no appetite, and his skin was muddy, used one 15-oz. bottle of your Concentrated Water, and it gives me pleasure to state that it had the effect to clear up his skin, give him a good appetite and cure his indigestion. I consider it a most valuable water.

Harry Wooding, Mayor,
Danville, Va.

After taking your Concentrated Iron and Alum Water myself, and using it in my family with fine results, I do not hesitate to recommend it as one of the best medicines to be found. We use it as a tonic, for Dyspepsia and Blood Trouble, and regard it as invaluable.

J. J. Lawson,
Cash'r Bank of South Boston,
South Boston, Va.

I have recently used your Concentrated Alum Water in several cases with very satisfactory results. Am using it at present for a few patients with which I am pleased, and if indeed. She says that she can say the soothing effect upon the stomach in a short while after taking a dose.

J. M. Shackleford, M. D.,
Martinsville, Va.

After using an 18-oz. bottle of your P.-B. Concentrated Iron and Alum Water, I feel that I cannot speak too highly in praise of it. After using it a few days, I could see that it was doing me much good. While my general health has been good, I was troubled considerably with Chronic Diarrhoea and Stomach trouble, and used but one bottle of this valuable Water and actually believe that I am permanently cured. I believe it will thoroughly everything it is recommended for.

J. W. Keatley,
Chief of Police,
Hinton, W. Va.

We have every reason to believe that what this Concentrated Water has done, and is doing, for other people, it will do for you, provided you will do your part by giving it a fair trial which will cost you nothing unless results are satisfactory.

This Concentrated Water cures Chronic Diseases, because it contains 20 different minerals, which are adapted to every organ of the human body, and when it is used, these minerals replace those which have escaped from the system, thus causing sickness.

If we cannot benefit you, we do not care for your money.

Go to see our local agent, and he will give you his personal guarantee, that we will live up to every promise we make.

18 oz. bottles $1.00. A teaspoonful in glass of ordinary water makes a dose.

The Evolution of Household Remedies.

The modern patent medicine business is the natural outgrowth of the home household remedies.

The early history of this country, THEY FAMILY HAD ITS HOME-MEDICINES. Herb teas, bitters, laxatives and tonics, were to be found in every house, compounded by the housewife, sometimes aided by the apothecary or the family doctor. Such remedies as picra, such was aloes and quassia, digested in apple brandy. Sometimes a dose made of whiskey, hops and sarsaparilla. A score or more of popular homemade remedies were thus compounded, the formulae for which were handed down from house to house, sometimes written, sometimes verbally communicated.

The patent medicine business is a natural outgrowth from this wholesome, old-time custom. In the beginning some enterprising doctor, impressed by the usefulness of one of these home-made remedies, would put it up, improve it in many ways, and manufacture it on a large scale, advertise it in many thorough almanacs of the home, and thus it came to be used over a large area. LATELY THE HOUSEHOLD REMEDY HAS BECOME A MORE EXACT AND SCIENTIFIC FORM.

Perunas was originally one of these home remedies. It was used by Mexicans, of Pennsylvania, before it was offered to the public by Dr. Hartman, THE ORIGINAL FOUNDER OF PERUNA, is of German descent. His father prescribed it for his neighbors and his friends, and it was a favorite remedy in the family. At last he established a manufactory and furnished it to the general public.

Peruna is useful in a great many chronic ailments such as coughs, sore throat, bronchitis and catarrhal diseases generally. THOUSANDS OF FAMILIES HAVE LEARNED THE USE OF PERUNA as a safeguard in the treatment of these. They have learned to trust and believe in Dr. Hartman's judgment and to rely on his remedy. Peruna
